REPORTS

For the Rice trade from Burmah and Arracan there has been less demand, during the fortnight, and such charters as have been effected establish a decline on our last quotations. Chinawards Bills and grant Luans to constituents on approvthere is no scarcity of shippers who however offer | ed Banking scourities, lower freights, which very few of the vessels now in Harbour seem inclined to accept. For London rates which may be ascertained on application two yessels, of medium size would readily secure at the Office, full cargoes, at £3 10s for dead weight, £4.10s for light freight and measurement, but as a good many vessels likely to take the berth are expected, we are by no means sanguine that these rates will be maintained. The value of British shipping will certainly be much increased in event of a Continental War, of any duration or importance.

To the Editor of the 'Daily Press." Str.—The history of our progress in Japan destined to be marked with those evils which sppear almost inevitable where civilization is sudden y brought into contact, face to face, with barbarism. As the phenomena attendant on the meeting of antagonistic elements serve to learn us of danger and tell of a fleree struggle going on, so the frequent recurrence of outrages on Foreigners in Japan reminds us that we are dealing with a nation rived from Calcutta about four yesterday. She opposed to us alike in Religion, Policy and Social, left Calcutta on 16th ultimo, and Singapore views-opposed to us with the accumulated projudice on the 27th idem at noon. She took in 800 of centuries and with whom we have hardly any ch. Opium, of which 200 were discharged at nations or feelings in common. Sir R. Alcock in his admirable and interesting work on Japan makes mention of a law attributed to Gongen Sama, which holds it to be a good and proper thing to slay Foreigners wherever they are found. Now Sir I am well aware that we cannot compel a people to like us by Act of Parliament or by any Treaty that man can devise, but it is perhaps possible for us to exist in Japan on a better footing than felous, and without being denounced by the government as something too vile to tread the hallowed shores of its country. With such a law as the above un-

The first point to be insisted upon is the expunging of the obnexious law, but as this of itself would only have the effect of making it no longer a meritorious act to take the life of a Foreigner we

If such a law could be passed no Japanese would think the punishment disproportioned to the crime the it's highly probable he would object to the Law itself.
